COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course provides an overview of the family in contemporary Canadian society. It is designed to deepen the student's understanding of, and empathy with, the families with whom they will be working. Focus is on the ecology of the modern family with particular reference to northern and indigenous families, collective societies, affluence, poverty, violence, special needs, the women's movement, men's involvement and roles, the children's rights movement, the relationship of the family and the world of work, and adjustment to alternative lifestyles. The course explores the shifting patterns, demands, roles, and values that create new kinds of family relations.

PREREQUISITES

Completion of ELCC Certificate or permission from ELCC Coordinator

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Upon successful completion of the course, students will:

- Identify and describe different shapes and processes of families and family-like relationships by examining a variety of definitions of family, including a personal definition
- Identify elements of family diversity and explain how historical/societal changes have contributed to that diversity

- Explain some of the key differences and similarities between Northern, Indigenous and non-Indigenous, rural and urban families.
- Explain the effects of poverty and affluence, domestic violence, parenting styles, divorce, work roles, geographical location, etc. have on family life and the development of children.
- Identify community resources that would be helpful to a family in specific situations
- Recognize and explain personal attitudes, values and biases in relation to topics discussed and analyze how these things affect their work with families.

DELIVERY METHODS/FORMAT

This 45-hour course will be delivered in the classroom setting and/or via web-conferencing by the instructor. The presentation of information will be delivered primarily by the instructor and occasionally by guest speaker.

Each lesson will include a variety of teaching/learning experiences. These strategies may include lecture, large and small discussion groups, in-class projects, experiences, simulations, role plays, observations, readings, audio-visual aids, guest speakers, and students' individual assignments.

ASSESSMENTS

Attendance and Participation

Much of the learning is done in the classroom. Students learn from each other, as well as from the instructor; therefore, attendance and appropriate participation are essential.

Students are expected to attend and participate in all classes, are expected to be actively involved in discussions, and must take responsibility for their own learning. Their personal experience and thoughts will provide much of the material for discussion. Therefore, it is expected that students are prepared for classes by having completed the required readings, assignments and other assigned work. Emphasis will be placed on learning by doing and on personal reflection on individual experiences.

Professional behaviour is expected. If a class should be missed, the student will communicate with their instructor ahead of time and at least upon their return to class.

Assignments

Each assignment is designed to help the student synthesize knowledge from class, readings, personal knowledge, and traditional knowledge to build greater understanding. Planned class discussions are enriched when students have completed assigned work at the appropriate time. Material from student assignments also plays an important role in helping the instructor design class activities and lectures to best suit the group of students. Therefore, handing in assignments on the due dates is very important.

Please note that ALL assignments must be completed in a satisfactory manner (over 50% grade) to receive a passing grade for the course.

Assignments will be discussed at the beginning of the course and presented in writing with criteria clearly defined. All students are encouraged to contact the instructor if they have questions or concerns about assignments or their progress. In exceptional circumstances, students may discuss alternate arrangements with their instructor (such as late submission of assignments, etc.).

ALL assignments must also be submitted punctually. 5% will be deducted for each calendar day that an assignment is late.

Please see additional comments about assignments in the assignment package.

ACADEMIC AND STUDENT CONDUCT

Information on academic standing and student rights and responsibilities can be found in the current Academic Regulations that are posted on the Student Services /Admissions & Regulations web page.

PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is a serious academic offence. Plagiarism occurs when students present the words of someone else as their own. Plagiarism can be the deliberate use of a whole piece of another person's writing, but more frequently it occurs when students fail to acknowledge and document sources from which they have taken material. Whenever the words, research or ideas of others are directly quoted or paraphrased, they must be documented according to an accepted manuscript style (e.g., APA, CSE, MLA, etc.). Resubmitting a paper which has previously received credit is also considered plagiarism. Students who plagiarize material for assignments will receive a mark of zero (F) on the assignment and may fail the course. Plagiarism may also result in dismissal from a program of study or the College.
