DATES: January 8 to April 9, 2025 (Wednesday 9-10:20 am)

COURSE DESCRIPTION

The course will introduce you to the study of public policy and the policy process through a Northern and Indigenous lens. The course progresses along three parallel tracks. The first track explores fundamental theories of policymaking and the stages of the policy cycle. The second track studies the evolution of Canadian federal and territorial policies in the North. The third track focuses on Indigenous policy challenges and opportunities in Canada generally and the Yukon specifically.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Prerequisite(s): ENGL 100 and one of: HIST 140 or FNGA 100 or FNGA 101. This is a second-year course and expectations are set accordingly. You are assumed to have taken other university-level courses in addition to the named prerequisites. If you do not meet the specified prerequisites you may be admitted with permission.

RELATED COURSE REQUIREMENTS

You will need a computer and stable internet connection. A headset with a microphone is also recommended.

EQUIVALENCY OR TRANSFERABILITY

Receiving institutions determine course transferability. Find further information at: <https://www.yukonu.ca/admissions/transfer-credit>

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Upon successful completion of the course, you will be able to:

- Define public policy and describe its stages of development and how it affects our lives.
- Describe and analyze how ideas, actors and interests inform and shape public policy.
- Explain public policy theory and policy making practice and describe how policy theory and practice applies to Northern and Indigenous contexts.
- Refine policy analysis, research, and writing skills for the purpose of providing clear, sound, and evidence-based advice.

- Develop, express and defend an informed position on a policy issue, demonstrating understanding and application of policy analysis techniques/tools and critical thinking.

DELIVERY FORMAT This course will be delivered online. Class sessions will involve synchronous (real-time) instructor presentations, discussions, guest lectures, student participation, and activities. Outside of class sessions, you will engage in readings and assignments.
